

March 23, 2018

I think that we are finally back in the swing of things in class. Layni and Nolan have joined our class for the remainder of the year and we are hoping they will return next year. They have been a great addition to our group. Most of the class has made great progress on their research papers for their project. Everyone has worked incredibly hard the last few days and have been very good about helping their classmates with their work.

The students each chose two words that they use that they have trouble spelling for our vocabulary list and that is attached, so you will all have a copy. Next week the corrected first draft of the research paper is due to me so I can go over them and have them back to the students by Wednesday, so they can get started on the second draft. We will also be working on the bibliography and inserting parenthetical citations in our text.

We will also go over our parts for the whacky Wednesday presentation of our version of ancient Greece for the younger children. We will be working on that over the next week to have it ready by April 4. We will also be working on all our usual work as well and getting ready for conferences in April. Remember that next week is a short week as there is no school on Friday. It will be a long weekend, so kids can work on their research projects if they get bored.

Since we had to take snow days, the school board voted last night that the last day of school would be Friday, May 25. This will be a 10:30 dismissal without childcare and our annual field day. Graduation will be the night before. More details will be coming from the office when we know details.

Best wishes,

Carla
