

Thursday, November 2, 2017

We hope everyone had a wonderful Halloween! It was so much fun seeing the kids all dressed up in their costumes. Thank you to everyone that brought items for our party and came to help out, it was definitely a success!

Next week we will be learning the letter Jj and the number 10. Our theme will be the jungle so we will discuss different animals that live there. In math we will continue working on number recognition and number order for pre-k while kindergarten is still learning subtraction concepts. For literacy we are continuing letter recognition and letter sounds in pre-k and retelling stories in kindergarten.

Weekend Homework:

This weekend we would like for you to practice name writing/tracing and correctly holding a pencil. If your child is already an expert at writing his/her name then practicing last names is always an option!

Reminders:

Please be sure that you are dropping your child off at school before 8:30. Our morning meeting is a very important time where we discuss what we will be doing for the day and it is a disruption for everyone when students are tardy. Scholastic orders went home today, so be sure to place your order before November 15th! We also sent home a new bag for extra clothes, please return them with a warm change of clothes. We have another short week next week; there will be no school or childcare next Friday in observance of Veteran's Day.

Enjoy the long weekend!

Miss Jennipher and Mrs. Melissa