Ms. Laura and Ms. Melissa

This week in PreK-K

Letter Focus: C – sound

Poetry Journals: This week's poem "Nocturnal animals" - another short poem about our vocabulary word "nocturnal."

Writing: Each of the students this week wrote something they know about leaves related to our leaf investigation.

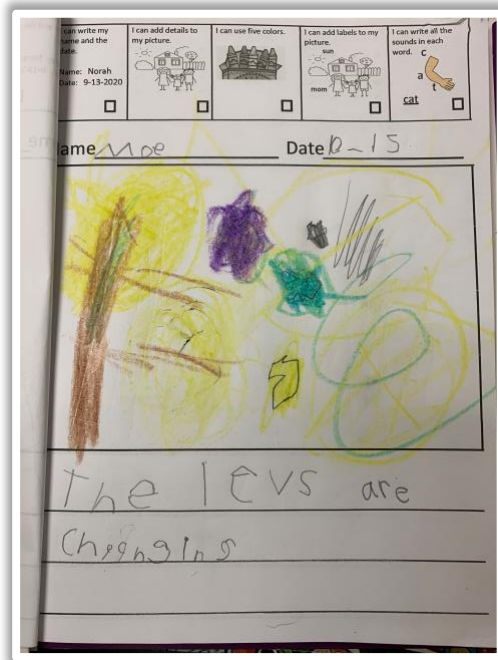

Reading: We have been enjoying read aloud featured by Ms. Melissa each afternoon with a Halloween theme! The students love them! Ask your child what Ms. Melissa has been reading to them.

Math: In Kindergarten math we are focusing on the number 10. In our class math journals we are separating numbers (subtraction). This can be a difficult concept for young children. We will revisit it throughout the school year.

Art: Due to no school on Monday we will begin a new art project next week. 😊

A few notes...

- A big thanks you! We've had lots less scary talk and behaviors this week! Let's keep working together on this – 2 weeks to go! Whew!
- It is so important for young children to feel and be independent when possible. One of the areas that they can show this independence is self-care and dressing. Thank you for helping our students have so much independence already with taking on and off shoes and coats. As the weather gets cooler and we have different layers and thicker socks, please continue to help your child be independent in putting on and taking off coats and shoes/boots. Help them learn what to do when the sleeves of their coats are inside out. Thank you so much!
- Reminder that we still need recipes for our CNS cookbook in the categories of breads, appetizers, side dishes, and soups/salads. Thank you so much!

One of the ways students are independent is by cleaning their own desks throughout the day at school.
