This week in PreK-K

Letter Focus: p – sound

Poetry Journals: This week's poem - "Fall is Here"

Writing: One day a week, the students write "little books" during writing time using thematic clipart collections. They draw the pictures and write the words on each page in their own blank books. You should begin to see these come home with your child.

Reading: In Guided Reading we are reading the text and then writing the answer to a question about the text and illustrating it. Students chose new books for their book boxes this week. We have begun reading Charlotte's Web and will watch the movie when we finish the book (tentatively planned for the week of Thanksgiving break)

Math: In Kindergarten math we are focusing on comparing numbers to 10. We are all practicing the transitions between decades when rote counting to 100.

Art: This week we collected leaves and made leaf self-portraits. What a fun activity! Check out the FB photos. 😊

A few notes...

- This week we have completed our series of safety drills required by the state. The children did a wonderful job following directions and practicing procedures to keep them safe. I am very proud of them all!
- Thank you for supporting both the CNS Spirit wear and Cookbook Fundraisers! We appreciate your contributions!
- Students can wear costumes to school on Friday, October 30th. Costumes cannot have weapons of any sort. Students are still required to wear a PPE face mask even if it is under a Halloween mask. Thank you for your help in following the CNS guidelines for a fun and safe celebration on this day! 😊

Balancing and weighing experiment in the dramatic play center with our vintage scale. Wow!
